

STUDENT EDITORS'

1. MANISHA ASWAL (Student Editor)

Manisha is a Ph.D. scholar at National Law University Delhi. She is the recipient of Junior Research Fellowship awarded by the University Grants Commission, India. Her doctoral work is centered around challenging gender stereotypes in the Indian legal system. She completed her LL.M. from NALSAR University of Law, Hyderabad in 2021 and LL.B. from the University of Delhi in 2020. She is also a researcher at the Centre for Law, Justice & Development at NLU Delhi since 2021, where she is engaged in research projects in the field of gender and education, and violence against women. Her areas of interest include gender, legal philosophy and constitutional law.

2. DIVYANSHU SHARMA (Student Editor)

Divyanshu is a final year student of B.A.LL.B. (Hons.) at National Law University, Delhi. He has previously worked with the British Council on an Industry-academia grant, wherein he contributed to the research on incorporation of sustainability norms in Indian mining companies. Apart from his keen interest in academic research and writing, he is an avid mooter. In 2021, he cleared the global rounds for Oxford International Intellectual Property Law Moot Competition. His areas of interest include corporate sustainability, corporate governance, securities law, and environmental law.