Our Logo

"There Shall Justice Prevail"

The logo of National Law University, Delhi is composed of 3 elements: n (N), L (L) and U (U) which are interlinked by the second element (L or Law). In its totality it represents the harmonious confluence of disparate elements (disciplines) and levels: a rule that Law and its executive, the judicial system, also performs. Individually, the "N" and "U" are downward-and upward-facing respectively, symbolising polar (and complementary) outlooks through which Law threads its way. The extension of "L" or Law to the last level (or layer) attempts to encapsulate the concerns of social justice. The emphasis is on the rule of Law (represented by the 'L') in promoting social justice, particularly targeting those below baseline standards. Its columnar arrangement suggests an upholding of justice, equality, fraternity and human rights in all their facets in a secular democracy.

Vision

Globalization is a challenge and also an opportunity in the present times. We require the convergence of Economics, Technology and Law. India had a long history of business and technology. The potential has been unleashed through the process of liberalization. Yet the smooth sailing requires the compass called Rule of Law. We have mixed track record on this count. India has established itself as a democracy which is a success on the macro participative process of governance. Yet, there are other crucial issues of internal dimension.

1. There is a complex task of assimilation of the fractured social classes for centuries in such participation.
2. Cumulative economic progress needs to reach the various layers to create a development index which is fair and equitable.
3. Most importantly a transparent and speedy justice administration system which reinforces the faith in Rule of Law.

Mahatma Gandhi said, 'We must become the change we want to see in the world.' Each one of us who is a part of this institution should be remembered for promotion of the social justice, which will be our contribution to the society.

Our sincere endeavour will be to make legal education as justice education, as an instrument of social, political and economic change, and to prepare lawyers who will be competent in the art of advocacy both at the trial and the appellate level and also skilled in judicial administration. The students of the National Law University, Delhi will be shaped as agents of change as the country mandates to achieve its developmental goals for future generations. The primary mission of the University will be to create lawyers who will be professionally competent, technically sound and socially relevant, and will not only enter the Bar and the Bench but also be equipped to address the imperatives of the new millennium and uphold the Constitution of India.

Legal Services Committee

Legal Aid Clinic

The Committee has established a fully functional legal aid clinic to pursue cases of people seeking legal counsel. In pursuit of this, the Committee has set up an office space on the campus premises from where a Legal Aid Clinic operates. Anyone can contact the clinic through a helpline no. which has been advertised in areas around the University and on the University website. A legal aid lawyer from the Delhi State Legal Services Authority (DSLISA) visits the clinic every week to deal with various grievances addressed to the clinic. The members of the Committee help the lawyers with these cases along with helping clients in filing complaints, writing letters, sending RTI's, applying for certificates online, etc.

Compensation for Sewerage Deaths Project

This Project, being undertaken by the Legal Aid Committee in association with the Safai Karamchari Andolan (SKA), aims to identify the families of deceased sewerage workers and to help them claim compensation from the Government of NCT of Delhi. According to the Supreme Court judgment in Safai Karamchari Andolan v. Union of India (2014) 11 SCC 224 in March 2014, the families of persons who have died while cleaning sewers/septic tanks since 1993 are entitled to a compensation of Rs. 10 lakhs from the state government or union territory. While it has been more than two years since the Supreme Court judgment was passed, as per information received by the Committee through RTI, there seems to be no government department which has initiated the process of identifying such families and providing compensation to them. This Project is trying to trace as many families as possible of sewerage workers who have died while being engaged in such forms of manual scavenging in Delhi. The Committee is also helping the families in procuring relevant documents (such as death certificate, post-mortem report, FIR, etc.) from the concerned authorities and in approaching the state government for claiming compensation.

So far, the volunteers have managed to conduct first-level field visits in cases of 79 (out of 84 identified) sewerage workers. Through these visits, we have been able to track their families in 58 instances and have also collected the relevant documents from some of them.

Pro Bono Week

The Committee, in collaboration with i-Probono, organized a first-of-its-kind event in February, 2017 for the students – 'Pro Bono Lawyering Week'. The event was intended to underscore the need for skilled lawyers to engage in working with disadvantaged groups and individuals, to enable access to justice. During this week, we called eminent Pro-bono lawyers in an attempt to provide exposure to students about such lawyering through multiple events – a lecture series, drafting workshops, vulnerable client counselling sessions, theatre for the oppressed workshops, and movie screenings.

Awareness: Posters, Flyers and Plays

In order to spread more legal awareness and to inform people about the clinic, the committee had put up posters and distributed flyers in Dwarka and areas surrounding Dwarka. Plays were also conducted for the same effect.

Para – Legal Volunteer

The Committee co-ordinates with the South West District Level Services Authority (SW-DLSA) to provide them assistance of students as Para Legal Volunteers (PLV's) whenever such a request is made by the Authority. The members of the Legal Services Committee as well as interested volunteers from the student body are engaged in providing assistance as PLV's to the resource persons. The Campaign will educate school students on issues such as gender inequalities, sexual offences, teenage pregnancies, drug abuse, juvenile justice and fundamental rights.

Campus Labour Issues: Registration, Drafting Contracts

To address the ongoing labour issues in the campus, the committee is trying to get the university registered as a Principal Employer and draft labour contracts for each employee.

Digitization of Records

Digitizing of clinic records for better accessibility is being undertaken.

Pro Bono Panel

Follow up becomes really difficult with the DLSA lawyers and since the lawyers change consistency issues arise. The Committee is working to set up a Pro Bono Panel with lawyers from different branches of law and different seniority to address the above issues. The clinic cases will then be handled by the lawyers from the Panel.

Programmes

1. Reports

Third Universal Periodic Review-India Report

The Universal Periodic Review is a procedure under the aegis of the United Nations Human Rights Council. It involves a peer review of the human rights record of the every Member State of the United Nations, once every four years. India has already undergone two cycles of review (in 2008 and 2012, respectively) and had its third round of review on May 4, 2017 at the Human Rights Council, Geneva.

Each country under review submits a national report documenting its human rights record since the previous cycle. National human rights institutions like the NHRC and domestic and international civil society organizations submit their own reports. The UN also compiles its reports and observations of its officials on the human rights record of the country. These documents form the basis of reviewing the record of the country by other members of the UN.

National Law University, Delhi has had the privilege of assisting the Government of India in preparing India's National Report for the current round of review. After an extensive consultative process, a team of faculty and students from the University prepared a first draft of the report which formed the basis of the report that was finally submitted by India to the UN. Prof. (Dr.) Ranbir Singh, the Vice-Chancellor of NLUD, led this effort. Prof. Singh was also part of India's delegation [which presented India's report at the UNHRC, Geneva]. The delegation was headed by the Attorney General of India, Mr. Mukul Rohatgi. At NLU Delhi Prof. (Dr.) Ranbir Singh and Dr. Aparna Chandra prepared and presented the Third Universal Periodic Review– India Report (3rd UPR) for the Government of India through Ministry of External Affairs on May 4, 2017 at the United Nations Human Rights Council, Geneva.

A Report by Amicus Curiae before The High Court of Delhi

In connection with a murder case where the accused was convicted by the trial court who while preferring an appeal to the Delhi High Court was found not guilty. However, this process took his precious 5 years or so and therefore the Delhi High Court while acquitting the accused set out the following questions:

- I. A background on the substantive law and procedure relating to the 'Default in payments of fine'
- II. What is the existing law on 'Suspension of Sentence' as given under the scheme of Section 389 of the Criminal procedure Code, 1973?
- III. What are the possible legal remedies for victims of wrongful incarceration and malicious prosecution in India?

In order to carry out research and submit the report, the Delhi High Court appointed Prof. (Dr.) G. S. Bajpai, Registrar, National Law University, Delhi, as an Amicus Curiae in this matter, who submitted the details on these issues. In its order dated November 30, 2017, the Delhi High Court requested the Law Commission of India to examine the possibility of a legislation for providing relief and rehabilitation to victims of wrongful prosecution and incarceration in India.

Specific to the question of compensating those wrongfully incarcerated, the questions as regards the situations and conditions upon which such relief would be available, in what form and at what stage are also matters requiring deliberation. This is a work best left in the first instance to the body tasked with advising the government on the legislative measures needed to fill the obvious gap.

The Court had, in September, 2016, highlighted several issues that needed consideration, while disposing of a case wherein the Trial Court had ordered the convict to undergo rigorous imprisonment of one year in the event of default in payment of fine. The Court had then inter alia opined that the issue concerning the possible legal remedies for victims of wrongful incarceration and malicious prosecution needed deliberation.

During the hearing, amicus curiae Prof. (Dr.) G.S. Bajpai, Professor of Criminology & Criminal Justice and Registrar, National Law University, Delhi, informed the Court that 32 States in the USA have enacted laws that provide monetary and non-monetary compensation to people wrongfully incarcerated. The Court was told that specific schemes have been put in place in the UK and New Zealand as well.

Dr. Bajpai also informed the Court that while India does not have an exclusive legislation on the issue, the Supreme Court has time and again ordered compensation to be ordered to the wrongly prosecuted.

The Court then noted;

“There is at present in our country no statutory or legal scheme for compensating those who are wrongfully incarcerated. The instances of those being acquitted by the High Court or the Supreme Court after many years of imprisonment are not infrequent. They are left to their devices without any hope of reintegration into society or rehabilitation since the best years of their life have been spent behind bars, invisible behind the high prison walls. The possibility of invoking civil remedies can by no stretch of imagination be considered efficacious, affordable or timely. Further, this has to invariably await the final outcome of the case which may take an unconscionably long time.”

The Court then took note of the existing provisions. It expressed qualms over the implementation of Section 436-A of the Criminal Procedure Code, which permits release on personal bond of under trial prisoners who have completed up to one half of the maximum period of imprisonment for that offence. “In any event, it is not an answer to the hardship undergone by an innocent person who is declared as such after spending more than a decade in jail,” it opined.

The Court further noted that while Section 358 of the Code provides for compensation to ‘persons groundlessly arrested’, it “fails to acknowledge the multiple ways in which not only the prisoner, who may ultimately be declared to be innocent, but the family of the prisoner faces deprivation and hardship”.

It then directed, “The Court, accordingly, requests the Law Commission of India to undertake a comprehensive examination of the issue highlighted in paras 11 to 16 of this order and make its recommendation thereon to the Government of India.”

The Death Penalty in India, Annual Statistics Report

The second edition of “The Death Penalty in India: Annual Statistics” brought out by the Centre on the Death Penalty (the Centre) at National Law University, Delhi attempts to compile comprehensive data on the use of the death penalty in India, in 2017.

In review, 2017 has been a year that presents significant challenges for the study of the death penalty in India. While there has been a drop of nearly 27% in the number of prisoners sentenced to death by Sessions Courts in 2017 (compared to 2016), there have been significant legislative developments that expand the role of the death penalty in the Indian penological imagination.

An overview reveals that legislative efforts by one state to introduce the death penalty for certain crimes encouraged other states to adopt similar strategies. After Madhya Pradesh introduced legislation that prescribed the death penalty for the rape of minor girls, the governments of Rajasthan and Karnataka announced plans to bring similar legislation into force. The Uttar Pradesh government’s decision in 2017 to bring in the death penalty for dealing in spurious liquor relied on a similar move by the Bihar Government in 2016. Soon after the Uttar Pradesh Assembly passed the bill in December 2017, the government of Madhya Pradesh announced plans to introduce an equivalent bill. State-specific movements in the death row population on both ends of the spectrum saw interesting developments.

At the end of 2017, Maharashtra recorded a net increase of 20 death row prisoners bringing its death row population to 67. This is a significant development because Maharashtra now has the highest death row population in India, overtaking Uttar Pradesh whose overall population is nearly twice of Maharashtra's. On the other hand, Karnataka's death row population was reduced from 27 to 12 (the highest reduction in the country) on the back of commutations and acquittals by the Karnataka High Court mainly in the Dandupalya case.

Teachers' Training Programme on Jurisprudence

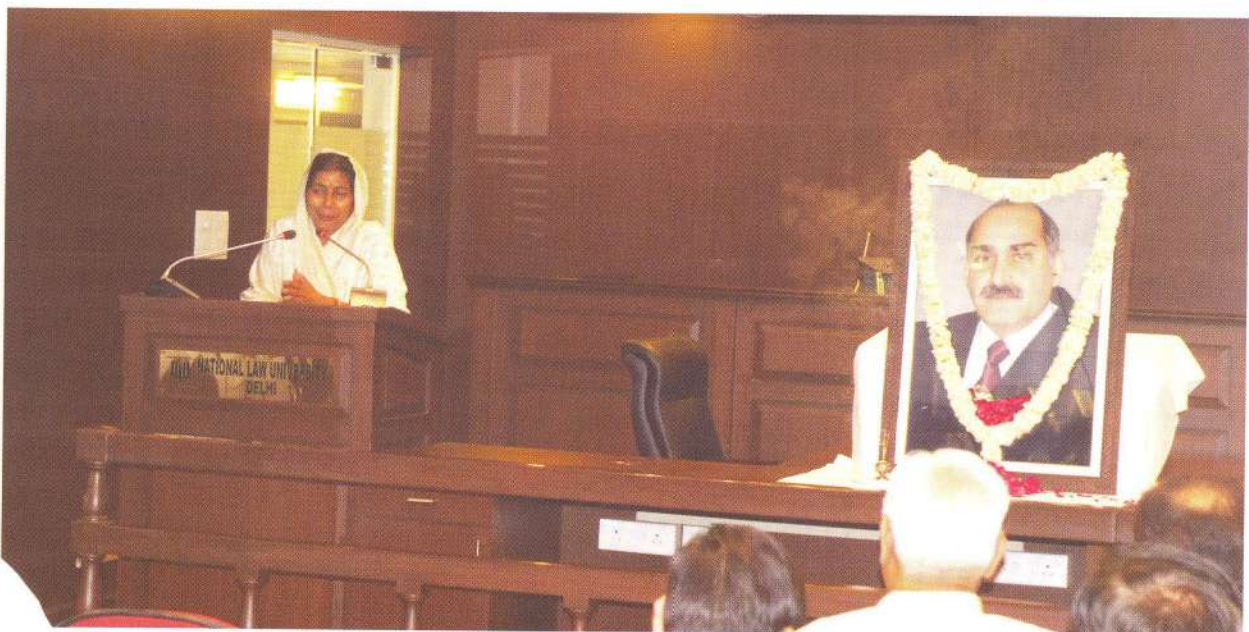

A Teachers' Training Programme on Jurisprudence was organised from December 15-19, 2017 at the National Law University, Delhi. The overwhelming response to the programme strongly establishes the absence of a national level engagement of this nature and emphasises the need for such efforts. Due to oversubscription to the course within 15 days of the announcement of the programme, the registration for the programme had to be stopped well before the period envisaged. The programme finally had 39 participants (excluding 11 participants from NLU Delhi) from both central and state as well public and private universities across India. Participants were drawn from 18 States of India.

With outstanding resource persons the programme not only focussed on the substantive contents of Jurisprudence course but also pedagogy, learning and research in the subject as well as outside it as informing research and teaching of other subject areas of law. The programme offered a balanced mix of deep theoretical expositions together with training the participants in how to make teaching of a course like jurisprudence more engaging and enriching not only for the students but teachers as well.

The discussions led to exploration of the expansive terrain of jurisprudence beyond the limited engagement with the so called 'schools of jurisprudence' which constrains the study of the subject. Meaningful engagement with Indian pre-colonial, colonial as well as post-colonial thinkers emerged as being crucial not only in learning and researching in jurisprudence but also in formulating and understanding contemporary issues. The exploration of the field of legal philosophy in the programme was grounded in social realities of people and sought to engage with it as a pathway to promote better understanding of these realities and offering ways to discover answers to the pressing questions that these realities pose. Different methods of engaging with jurisprudence not only as a separate field of study but also as a method of engaging with other subjects of law were explored in the span of one week. 'Law Teachers' Declaration on Jurisprudence Curriculum' was the most significant, concrete and immediately visible outcome of the programme, which is expected to inform our vision of and engagement with jurisprudence in times to come.
